

All set for a CAREER...

This is how Najam came back home.
Thanks to the trust you have placed in SIUT!

Thirty three year old Najam came to SIUT in 2008 from Dadu. He was diagnosed with acute renal failure and remained on dialysis for six months, after which his kidney function partially improved. One year later his kidney function deteriorated again and he became dialysis dependent. In 2010, he was given a kidney transplant - his sister was the donor. Najam has now relocated to Karachi. He has acquired a master's degree in Economics and is studying to become a lawyer while working at a travel agency. Like all our transplant patients, he will continue to receive the free medication that he needs to remain healthy.

Thanks to your enduring trust, SIUT is now one of the largest dialysis and transplant centre and public health institute in South Asia

Najam is one of the 1 crore patients SIUT has treated, absolutely free of cost, in the last 40 years.
